

One of NCRP's early accomplishments involved tackling United Way's monopoly on workplace fundraising. It played a critical role in the development of alternative workplace giving funds, such as Community Shares, Earth Shares and Community Coalition Funds.

Related Publications

Charitable Fundraising in the Workplace: The Roles of Alternative Workplace Funds and Federations in Supporting Nonprofit Change

January 2007

This report looks at how alternative, progressive workplace funds and federations benefit the nonprofit sector and what kinds of organizations gain from the funding generated by their campaigns.

Giving at Work 2003

July 2003

This report is based on a survey conducted in conjunction with the National Alliance for Choice in Giving.

The Power of Relationships: Northwest Ohio Community Shares

August 2004

This report is a history of the creation of Northwest Ohio Community Shares, a coalition of local social justice and social service agencies that came together to create collectively what was denied to them separately, the opportunity to solicit workers for payroll deduction contributions at Toledo workplaces.

Prospects for a New Model of Workplace Giving in Miami-Dade

This report is the result of a field research from the National Alliance for Choice in Giving and NCRP to assess the feasibility of creating a new workplace fundraising federation to support social change and social justice charities through employee charitable donations in public and private sector workplaces.