Do you work for a nonprofit organization led by or serving communities of color?

Are you a grantmaker wanting to learn more about how to be an ally to nonprofits led by and serving traditionally marginalized populations?

Are you generally interested in exploring questions of fairness and equity in philanthropy?

If so, the NYC Collaborative for Fairness and Equity in Philanthropy (CFEP) invites you to join a discussion on these issues.

In the last few years, critical issues have been raised about fairness, accountability, and transparency in philanthropic giving that have sparked a national conversation within foundation and nonprofit communities alike. Several reports have been released questioning the diversity of giving practices and encouraging nonprofits and foundations to build new relationships with each other in order to find new solutions to these problems.

Seeing the need to build momentum around these crucial discussions, the NYC Collaborative for Fairness and Equity in Philanthropy (CFEP) is holding a forum to bring different stakeholders together to:

* Further understand research demonstrating the lack of giving to Asian, Black, Latino, Native American and other traditionally marginalized

Prevention (LCAT) - National Urban Fellows (NUF) - New York Asian Women's Center - New York Community Media Alliance - North Star Fund - Northern Manhattan Coalition for Immigrant Rights (NMCIR) - Organization of Chinese Americans (OCA-NY) - PRDream.com - United Chinese Association of Brooklyn - YKASEC - Empowering the Korean American Community - Young Bucks Inc.
