

Lack of Diversity in Arts Giving Criticized in New Study

Chronicle of Philanthropy

October 10, 2011

Most foundations make grants to big arts organizations that serve a well-to-do, predominantly white audience, the Associated Press reports, citing a new study by the National Committee for Responsive Philanthropy.

The study, to be released Monday at an arts grant maker's conference in San Francisco, says organizations with annual budgets exceeding $5-million, representing about 2 percent of cultural organizations, collected 55 percent of arts grants in 2009.

Read the full article .