s Voice to Nonprofits, Calls For Increased General Support Grantmaking By Foundations

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Although the philanthropic sector has close to a trillion dollars in assets, the sector has long been criticized for not doing enough to support the core operating support of grassroots organizations. A new report from the National Committee on Philanthropy, A Call to Action: Increasing the Effectiveness and Impact of Foundations, gives voice to the needs of nonprofits and calls for increased general support grantmaking by foundations.

Author Rick Cohen “hopes this report will encourage more action from nonprofits that have experienced

The report features commentary from representatives of over 120 nonprofits in Colorado, Georgia, Maine, “After listening to people who do the real in-the-trenches work for nonprofits across the country, we learned

Dorfman, who led grassroots organizations for the past 15 years before joining NCRP in February 2007,
