

For Immediate Release

3/3/2004

Contact:

Jeff Krehely / Rick Cohen

(202) 387-9177

jeff@ncrp.org / rick@ncrp.org

ATION OF THE PHILANTHROPIC GRANTMAKING OF POLITICALLY CONSERVATIVE FOUNDATIONS

foundations have used to support the activities of 350 public policy-oriented right-wing think tanks at the WASHINGTON - The National Committee for Responsive Philanthropy (NCRP) has issued a new report.

"Conservative foundations are brazen and confident in their grantmaking to advance a conservative political agenda,"

Jeff Krehely, NCRP's deputy director and the lead author of NCRP's report, Axis of Ideology: Conservative

- more -

NCRP News Release

Wednesday, Mar. 3, 2004

Page 2 of 3

Among the major findings of NCRP's Axis of Ideology report are the following:

- From 1999 through 2001, the 79 conservative foundations made more than $252 million in grants.
- The top conservative foundation givers were the Sara Scaife Foundation ($44.8 million), the Lynd
- Multi-issue public policy think tanks got 46% of the grants, followed by 10% for education-oriented
- The largest recipient locales for conservative foundation public policy grantmaking, in rank order, were
- The 10 largest recipients of conservative foundation grants between 1999 and 2001, in rank order, were